About The American Cancer Society Making Strides Against Breast Cancer Walk

The ACS Making Strides walk describes the progress the American Cancer Society is making to help victims of Breast Cancer get well, stay well, and find a cure for the disease. Participants of the walk are encouraged to share stories of their victories against the disease. More than 200 Making Strides walks are held nationwide each year to celebrate people who have battled breast cancer. The money raised through the walks help the American Cancer Society create a world with less breast cancer and more birthdays.
